 10.B:f3 c:d4 11.Q:d4 Be7

In result we see a Sicilian position "hedgehog" type with exchange of one pair of knights. Perhaps, this nuance can be entered as an asset of the black – pieces will not "bother" and would be easier to develop the pressure on the line "c". Black can be quite pleased with the results of the debut. 12.Be3 0-0 13.a4 Too optimistic. White did not manage to perform the wing coup, therefore, should take a course on solidity, placing the pieces at the center... 13...Nd7 14.Bg2 Ne5 15.Red1 Rc8 16.Qb4 Nc4

It is already evident that the white suffer from their own plans. Pieces one after another fall under the blow. Black retained a strong pawn structure, got a outposts c4, e4 for pieces, as well as pressure on the pawn d4. All this more than compensates for the small material damage.
